

The reason I think this is so good and much needed, is that it is what I call, Human Formation. At least ¼ of all my seminary formation was dedicated to Human Formation, in addition to Academic, Pastoral, and Spiritual. The Human Formation deals with the emotional, psychological, physical, relational and our human nature. You've heard the expression "grace builds on nature". Well, this is developing the potential of our nature. I haven't talked to Jerome Meeds on this yet, but it looks like the emphasis is on what the Tradition calls Natural Law. I'm very glad to see something like this in a faith setting. I know Jerome Meeds. He is a devout Catholic and very faithful.
